CURRENT RESEARCH SUPPORT

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation – Health Data for Action 12/1/2021 – 5/31/2023
Mullachery, Pricila (PI) Total cost: $100,000
Title: Assessing individual- and neighborhood-level indicators of social determinant of health in predicting COVID-19 outcomes.
Aim: To examine associations between individual- and neighborhood-level indicators of SDOH and COVID-19 outcomes in a large and diverse cohort of patients in the Greater Philadelphia Region.
Data: patient-level longitudinal electronic health records from a cohort of patients in the HealthShare Exchange (HSX) Clinical Data Repository linked to neighborhood-level data for several socioeconomic and built environment characteristics. This study examines inequities in COVID-19 outcomes across different groups such as low-income patients (i.e., Medicaid or dual-eligible Medicare beneficiaries) and patients from diverse racial/ethnic groups (i.e., Black and Latinx).
